As of February 2017, National Széchényi Library will host a unique traveling exhibition. Gems of the literature of Hermetic Philosophy, 400-year-old, classic Rosicrucian documents will be presented, which once urged the educated European world to embrace “general, worldwide reformation”. The immense intellectual and spiritual impulse and message of these documents not only had a major impact on the cultural history of Europe but, by the depth and clarity of thought, they have also been present in our present-day culture as an ever influencing impulse.

The philosophy of the exhibited documents searches for answers to eternal, universal questions, such as what kind of values to follow while living and changing, so that a new vista of life could evolve – with us, within us and by us.
