Our colleagues at the BOBCATSSS conference

2019/02/01

The 27th International BOBCATSSS conference of the library community was held from January 22 until January 24, 2019 in Osijek, Croatia. Our colleagues – three doctorandus students and a university professor – also took part in the symposium.

The 27th International BOBCATSSS [1] (Barcelona, Oslo, Budapest, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Tampere, Stuttgart, Szombathely, Sheffield) annual conference of the library and IT professional communities was held from January 22 until January 24, 2019 in Osijek, Croatia. The title of the conference was the following: “Information and technology transforming lives: Connection, Interaction, Innovation”.

NSZL staff members – three doctorandus students and a university professor – also took part in the symposium and delivered the following lectures in English:

- Andor Nagy: Ensuring equal access to digital content: how to make an accessible web design for a librarian wiki website?
- Rita Radó: New challenges for the libraries in the digital era
- Máté Tóth: Libraries as public sphere institutions – comparative study in six European countries
- Márton Németh and László Drótos: Web archives as a research subject

Next year’s venue of the annual conference will be Paris.

The next issue of Könyv, Könyvtár, Könyvtáros [2] (Book, Library, Librarian) magazine will report on the event.
