40 YEARS – DREAM ON STAGE
Imre Madách: The Tragedy of Man – exhibition

In this exhibition, we present some particularly interesting documents from the Theatre History and Music Collection to mark the 200th anniversary of Imre Madách's birth and the 140th anniversary of his theatrical premiere. Starting from the beginning of the history on the stage of The Tragedy of Man (21 September 1883), we will list the most exciting set and costume designs and theatre photographs of the first half of the 20th century (1926, 1934, 1939), and conclude with a look at the opening performance of the National Theatre on 15 March 2002.
Visitors will be able to admire the colourful and modern visual world with which Madách's great philosophical text was brought to life by directors and designers of all ages. Our presentation introduces the audience to the theatrical history of the Tragedy through a variety of technical solutions. They can digitally scroll through Ede Paulay's director's copy, take a selfie with Lucifer in the original premiere, and imagine themselves in front of Gusztáv Oláh's projected sets in Szeged. You can also browse through film adaptations based on the life of Imre Madách and The Tragedy of Man.

Venue: research room of the Historic Photo and Video Collection, floor 7
Time: ongoing

- 16 September, Saturday: 10.00–19.00
- 17 September, Sunday: 10.00–18.00

RETRO PC exhibition

Do you like 80s and 90s IT and computer games from that era? Then you're in the right place – our Heritage Days exhibition features nearly 100 working computers to relive your childhood, and the young can see what their parents socialised on.
Commodore, early Apple, Hungarian-built computers and x86 PCs are all represented, and you can not only see them, but try them out!

Location: Northern Reading Room, level 7
Time: ongoing

- 16 September, Saturday: 10.00–19.00
- 17 September, Sunday: 10.00–18.00
