In an upward trend

2018/07/10

An interview was made with László Boka, Director of Research and Academic Affairs, NSZL and Head of NSZL Publishing House.

[1]The Publishing House [2] of National Széchényi Library has been present on the Hungarian book market with its prestigious titles for years now. Based on the unique collection of NSZL and the special knowledge of its staff, NSZL Publishing House publishes 25 to 40 publications annually. Individually or jointly with renowned publishers in Hungary and abroad, NSZL offers a wide range of books including facsimile editions, illustrated albums, volumes of conference lectures and essays, gap-filling bibliographies and exhibition catalogs. As a literary historian and editor, László Boka has played an active role in the life of the publishing house since 2005, and he has served as Head of NSZL Publishing House since 2010.

The interview [3] was published in the June 2018 issue of Új Könyvpiac [4] (New Book Market).
